THE NAWAH DIFFERENCE

Business Focus

The NAWAH group of companies specializes in a variety of commercial ventures focused on frontier markets. From a corporate headquarters in Dubai, United Arab Emirates, and operational headquarters in the historic Iraqi port city of Basra, Iraq, NAWAH engages in:

- Oil and Gas Equipment Supply & Distribution
- Oil Field Services
- Port Management & Freight Forwarding
- Advisory Services

Regional Focus

Iraq lies at the center of a diverse and abundant region. Often referred to as the cradle of civilization, Iraq is a great society poised to regain its historical position as the commercial bridge between East and West. With its vast supply of natural resources, its continuing infrastructure development and an ever-improving business climate, Iraq's economic future is filled with immense potential.

NAWAH's mission is to serve as a dependable partner to Iraq in this historic moment – bringing in-depth country knowledge and global business expertise to bear as Iraq reclaims its place as a regional – and global – economic hub.

Company Leaders

Thomas Pritzker, Chairman & Co-Founder

Tom Pritzker, who serves as NAWAH's chairman, is a recognized leader in international business. Pritzker is also chairman and CEO of the Pritzker Organization, the principal financial and investment adviser to various Pritzker family business interests. He is executive chairman of Hyatt Hotels Corporation and chairman of Marmon Group, Inc. (a subsidiary of Warren Buffett's Berkshire Hathaway). He serves on the board of Royal Caribbean Cruises Ltd. Pritzker is also active in a number of philanthropic organizations including chairing the Hyatt Foundation, which sponsors the Pritzker Architecture Prize.

Paul Brinkley, Chief Executive Officer & Co-Founder

Before launching NAWAH, Paul Brinkley served as U.S. Deputy Undersecretary of Defense, leading a groundbreaking task force charged with developing economic opportunities in Iraq and Afghanistan through a range of efforts, including the successful encouragement of investment by U.S. and Western businesses. Before his government post, Brinkley held a number of senior executive roles with Silicon Valley technology companies, including JDS Uniphase and Nortel Networks. A licensed professional engineer, he is the recipient of four U.S. patents, and has published research on process optimization, production economics and artificial intelligence.

NAWAH differentiates itself in many ways with unparalleled, in-country operational experience across Iraq, strong relationships with business and governmental leaders and a global industrial alliance with several of the world's most respected and successful companies. NAWAH is driven by several guiding values:

- Respect for Iraq's history, culture and people
- Commitment of private capital to build and sustain successful, locally-managed businesses
- Partnership with Iraqi companies, remaining personally and professionally invested in their long-term success
- Integrity driven business approach with all employees, partners, suppliers and collaborators required to operate transparently and in adherence with the highest ethical and international business standards
